Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 12 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Blanchard (USP 3,358,698).

Blanchard discloses a hair holding device (figs. 12, 13) comprising a first body member (26e) and a second body member (26e), both members having hair gripping portions (60, 62), hinge means (64) for pivotally connecting first and second body members and elastomeric means (68) for biasing the first and second members into a closed position and for conforming to gathered strands of a user's hair (col. 4, lines 38-41), the elastomeric means being in contact the first and second body members (see elastic band in fig. 12). In regard to claims 2-3, 5, 6, 9 and 12, Blanchard discloses the elastomeric means having a continuous band (68) having a first and second end (at pins 66), means (66) at the first and second ends for connecting the at least elastomeric strand to the first and second body and means (66) for removably connecting the at least elastomeric strand to the first and second body. In regard to claim 20, the device shown by Blanchard will perform the method recited in the claims during normal operational use of the device.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Blanchard in view of Chang (USP 6,360,752).

Blanchard discloses the essential claimed invention as discussed above except for a torsion spring for biasing first and second body members, first and second body members including handle portions and a connecting lug at a hinge means. Chang discloses a hair holding device having first and second body members (11, 11') including handle members (10, 10'), a torsion spring (3) for biasing first and second body members and a connecting lug (see fig. 1) at the hinge means. It would have been obvious to one having an ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the first and second members of Blanchard with the handles and the torsion spring as taught by Chang in order to facilitate the gripping purpose.

Claims 4, 7, 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Blanchard.

Blanchard discloses the essential claimed invention as discussed above except for the elastomeric means being permanently connected to the first and second members and means for permanently connecting the at least one elastomeric band to the first and second body members. It would have been obvious to one having an ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form the elastomeric means being permanently connected to the first and second members and means for permanently connecting the at least one elastomeric band to the first and second body members, since it has been held that forming in one piece an article which has formerly been formed in two pieces and put together involves only routine skill in the art.
